From vintner Simone Biliorsi, the organic Fornacina 2019 Brunello di Montalcino has a very earthy quality with leather and tobacco. There is dark fruit buried within, but the wine definitely pulls toward those savory notes throughout. With time in the glass, you get dark cherry and blackberry confit. And, finally, on a third wave, there are flinty mineral tones. It all balances out in the end. Only 12,000 bottles were produced.
